

Open Call: Junior Fellowships (100%) at the Collegium Helveticum, Zurich

The Collegium Helveticum is pleased to share with you the new fellowship programme, starting at 1 September 2021. As an Institute for Advanced Studies (IAS) run jointly by ETH Zurich, the University of Zurich and Zurich University of the Arts, the Collegium seeks to promote exchange and collaboration across disciplinary boundaries.

We are looking for eight scholars and artists who would like to spend 10 months in 2021/22 as junior fellows at the Collegium Helveticum, located in the ETH Zurich's historical observatory («Semper Observatory»). The call is open for early-career researchers working in any academic or artistic disciplines at postdoc or equivalent level (for artists). Junior fellows receive a grant in the form of a full-salaried post at ETH Zurich. The fellows will be able to pursue individual projects and become part of the Collegium's international network and fellow community. The Collegium's work and meeting rooms, its new art and exhibition spaces and its various opportunities for exchange and interaction offer ideal conditions for a thriving culture of dialogue and a creative environment for innovative academic and artistic projects.

Please visit the College's website to learn more about the opportunities and conditions of the Fellowships Program and to apply as a Junior Fellow for the 2021/2022 term. See <https://collegium.ethz.ch/en/fellow-program> for more details. The call for individual fellowships is now open for application and will close on 30 April 2021.

Please circulate the Call for Applications in your professional networks including researchers and artists.
